On August 19, 363 students and their parents poured onto campus, transforming the summer serenity into a fall frenzy.

Amidst the noise and rush of orientation, handshake, and the other get-acquainted activities, the hassles of moving in, meeting with the faculty or your roommate for the first time, registering, and buying books, students finally got settled down for another year.

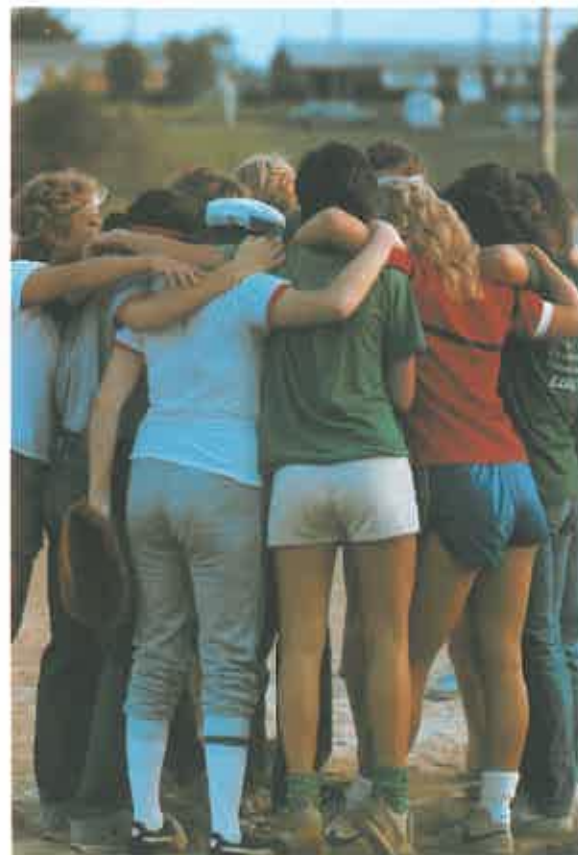

EXPERIENCE
THE DIFFERENCE

Shenandoah is not an ordinary school. Our education is not limited to the classroom, or to the textbooks. We are taught in many different ways. Students learn about the Creator in daily worships. They learn how to play musical instruments, and get to test and improve their skills by performing in the many school programs. Learning is even done while playing games at recreation.

So whether it is in the classroom, on the ballfield, or in worships, Shenandoah offers a different kind of an education. It is a learning experience that makes education both fun and well balanced.

EXPERIENCE THE DIFFERENCE

Where Shines The Big Virginia Sun,
And Old Dominion's Streamlets Run,
From Out The Massanutt's Cool Shade,
And Down Great Allegheny's Glade,
God's Works In Nature Multiplied,
Extol His Name On Ev'ry Side.

O Shenandoah, Dear Shenandoah,
In Thee Do We Delight To Rest,
And Daily Strive To Do Our Best,
For Shenandoah, Shenandoah.

Excited

Fun to be with, a wonderful person and a great friend; all of these and more describe Pastor Victor Brown, someone to whom we are proud to dedicate this yearbook.

Since he came to our school five years ago, his faithful service and patience has been an inspiration to us all. His knowledge and love for God, and his christian lifestyle has influenced many people to a closer relationship with God.

His countless responsibilities do not end as campus pastor, or as religion teacher. His hectic schedule includes organizing singspiration, weeks of prayer, bible camps, mission projects, and numerous other activities.

But in spite of his busy schedule, he always finds the time to be a friend, to listen, or to help with a problem. For all of these things and much more, we thank you.

Religion . . . Our Sustainer

The weekend comes, quiet, peaceful, relaxing, a time to reflect on what has happened, and to take a break from our daily routine. Starting with friday night vespers, our weekend begins in the quiet atmosphere of the New Market church. Everyone is in their sabbath clothes looking their best. We sing a few songs, and pray, but the biggest attraction is the guest speaker. Every week there is a different talk to recieve encouragement from. The speakers invited are usually witty, enjoyable, and entertaining, as well as informative.

But it dosen't stop there. Afterward is singspiration, which is not required, but those who go to the student center and sing recieve an added blessing. Then we head back to our dorm rooms for a good nights rest. The next morning we awake to greet the sabbath day. Our first meeting, sabbath school, is in the ad. building chapel. Each sabbath provides something new for every person. We never know exactly what to expect. There might be a guest speaker, an interesting story read, a question and answer session with different argumentive views, or a skit performed by fellow students. Whatever the program may be it is usually very interesting. We then break up into smaller groups for our lesson study.

Each sabbath there is a rush to get to church on time. With the many students and community members it is sometimes hard to find a seat. A tradition of our church is to have a children's story, which everyone enjoys hearing, right before the sermon. The speaker's message always offers us new spiritual enrichment, bringing to life old stories with new meanings.

At the close of sabbath, we meet for vespers in the church. It is a special time in which we recognize the power and love of Jesus. After the service we quietly leave the church meditating on what a pleasant and peaceful day we have had.

Battle For The Mind

Fall week of prayer was more than the usual week of meetings that lift you to a spiritual high and tend to drop you off after the speaker leaves. Dr. Bill Liversidge made things different. He started study groups which carried on through the year to make it a year of prayer.

More than 100 students got involved; they met every Monday night to study the bible and share personal experiences. The faculty, who had been meeting with Dr. Liversidge for many weeks to prepare for the study groups, volunteered themselves as group leaders. That week God won the battle for the mind in many peoples' lives.

MUSIC TO SET THE MOOD. Our week of prayer was highlighted with special music performed by the students and faculty.

AFFIRMATION. Dr. Liversidge enjoyed telling people what good qualities he saw in them. Up front and slightly nervous, Mrs. Johnston is affirmed of her abilities to do service for God.

LET GOD-WIN! A very warm and friendly speaker, Dr. Liversidge shared exciting and inspirational experiences with us.

STUDY GROUPS. Meeting in small groups with faculty leaders, many students studied the bible and shared their spiritual growth with each other.

COMMUNION. A special service to close the week of meetings, communion is a time when everyone reaffirms their commitments to God.

Bible Conference

Camp Blue Ridge was the setting for the annual Junior/Senior Bible Conference held again this year.

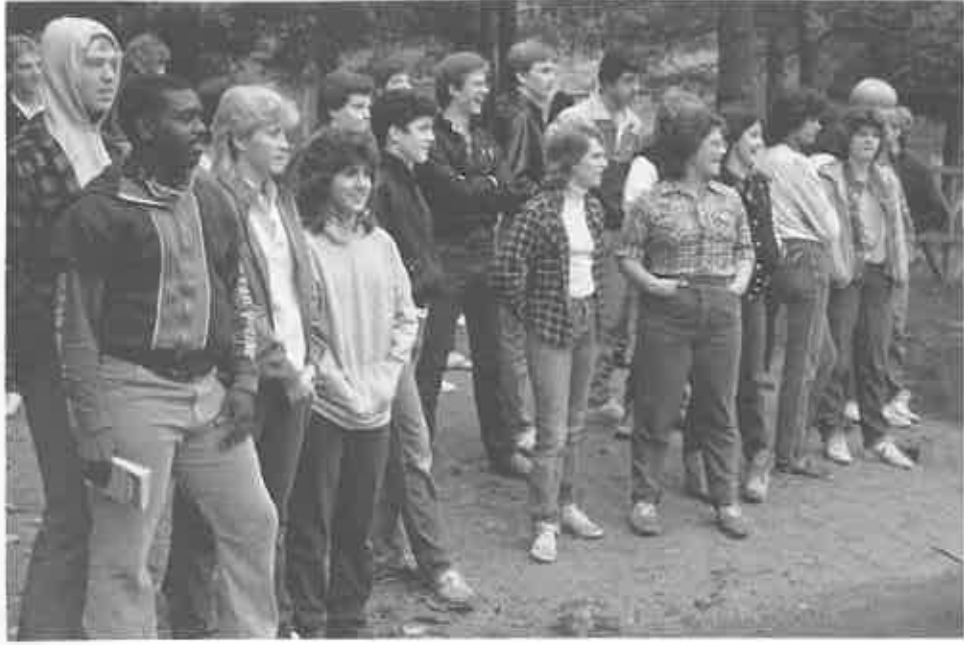

The theme communicated by guest speakers Mike Dunn, associate director of Yough Ministries for the Potomac Conference and George Gainer, Youth Pastor from Takoma Academy, focused on social relationships, peer pressure, and learning to cope with the problems of youth today. Sharing with us personal challenges that were met, they gave insight on their own experiences in character building.

Thought questions were presented to small discussion groups allowing for personal input to be expressed, and student leaders led in a debate on Sabbath dealing with Controversial issues over topics such as committing a sin to save someone's life.

The outdoor atmosphere offered numerous forms of entertainment including football, canoeing, horseback riding, sailing, and hikes of various distances, something to whet every individual's appetite.

On Sabbath afternoon, students had the opportunity to fill their free time by talking with friends, taking naps, or just communicating with nature up at spy rock.

Overall the topics delivered were accepted extremely well by the student body. Many excited students came back carrying a positive attitude and a closer feeling towards God. Andrea Steinmuss, a Junior, summed everything up by saying, "It was a chance to get closer acquainted with my friends and an opportunity to obtain cordiality with people I'd otherwise never see."

FASCINATING DIVERSIONS: Juniors and Seniors stand together, their attentions focused on the lake, where canoes, paddles, spashing water and laughter combine into an intriguing picture of memorable moments.

ATTENTIVE LISTENERS. Cope gave the Sabbath School Lesson study in the great outdoors.

Christmas Candlelight Concert

RELAXING ATMOSPHERE. Singing by candlelight creates a peaceful, quiet mood.

SLOWLY AND QUIETLY. Singing softly the choir makes their way in front of the waiting audience.

Early in the fall planning and preparations by the choir and music department begin. Jerry Taylor spends much of his time finding good musical pieces that all will enjoy. To accommodate the many people who attend, there are two concerts, one on Friday night and the other on Saturday evening.

It is a tradition for alumni, parents, and people from the community to attend each year. There is a certain feeling of closeness that makes you glad you came and showed adoration to Him.

The Candlelight Service adds a special touch to the holidays with carols, candles, and true happy feelings about the birth of our Saviour.

TIGHT SEATING. The huge audience was filled with the spirit of Christmas as the musical groups performed.

RINGING IN HARMONY. The bell choir rings out a beautiful introduction for the concert.

SINGING TOGETHER. The Elementary school choir, Shenandoans, and Big choir combine their singing talents to make the concert a big success.

Band

Music at Shenandoah Valley Academy is applied as a form of art. It provides students with the opportunity to improve and show their talents.

The band plays both secular and religious songs, providing enjoyable sounds to listening ears. Concerts are performed in the fall and in the spring when the group goes touring. Much practice is involved in band with the class meeting at 5:25 every school day and with extra individual practice during the day.

Overall band is an exciting class in which students both learn and have fun.

FEW BUT GOOD. Duane Burnette and Morris Porter are the only Bass Clarinets' this year.

STEADY BEAT. Percussion is a vital part of the bands good sound.

LINED UP. With crisp clear notes the trumpets practice their part in a song.

CLOSE BUT COMFORTABLE. With 70 members, the band room was fully packed this year.

Big Choir

By the time fourteenth period comes around, all are tired. The day has been long and everyone wishes it would end. But as choir members walk down the hall, and hear the piano being played, a smile forms on their face.

On opening the door, you see Jerry Taylor, the choir director, look up from the piano keys, and smiling, he says "Hello". Taking your seat you look around to see who made it to class today.

Mr. Taylor then begins with the warm-ups. No one really puts much into them. As he starts with the music for Sabbath, people get enthusiastic because their leader puts so much effort into each session.

Sabbath rolls around and it's just another day until the group enters the platform and the organ strikes those first familiar chords. As the choir begins and you see the smiles of appreciation forming on the faces of the congregation, you realize that the week of practice was well worth it.

Then your time of greatness ends. Jerry looks up from the organ to his group and presents a big smile. You know that even though it's all over, it will return again, and you can't wait till it does.

FROM NOISE TO MUSIC. The days excitement is related to friends as the choir members wait for practice to begin.

EDITORS NOTE

I just wanted to give a special thanks to some people for their help in making this yearbook.
 Bill: You spent a lot of overtime in the dark room, a terrific job on our pictures.

Joy: Time can be tight, thanks for the time you gave typing, giving ideas, and everything else.

Angie: Taking pictures on a seconds notice, and writing articles, thank you.

Karen: Whatever needed to be done you did, sorting, alphabetizing, or errands. Thanx

Becky: How you could tell who was who in the pictures I'll never know. Your proofreading was really good.

Rodney: Typing in those computer files, filling out 3-R's, setting dry transfer letters, taking pictures, you did it all. Thanks lifesaver.

Writers: To everyone who wrote articles for the book, Thank-You.

Mrs. Vinglas: The person to go to. You always knew what to do and how to get it done. Super thanks.

Connie: Sparing all the time you could, you really helped put things together.

Janel: Getting all those ads together was so helpful, couldn't have done it without you.

Judi: From the start you have always been there, your ideas, and support have been an inspiration to me. And also a very special thanks for being you.

Thanks

Close Quarters

When students arrived at school, they were faced with the dilemma of making a bare cinder-block cubicle into home. With the academy essentials of popcorn poppers, curtains, bedding, and even refrigerators, the dorm rooms became compact models of the homes they left behind. Aside from added conveniences, many students creatively arranged and rearranged their rooms to make added space or break the monotony.

Upon arrival, students' remarks range from, "You mean I have to live here?" and "It's so bare!", to "Oh it's so cute!"

Cozy additions like carpet, decorative bedspreads, house plants and favorite posters compensated for the inability to rearrange some of the rooms. The guys personalized their rooms with wall hangings such as flags and street signs. While many students, with the help of a study pillow and lap board used their beds for day and night use. Other students preferred to bunk their beds to make room for book shelves, chairs, or breathing room. Students sometimes complained about cold floors and claustrophobia, but most dormitory residents had all the comforts of home.

Conversation like: "What time do you want to get up in the morning?"

"Boy, do we need to clean our bathroom!"
"I'm tired of studying, lets go visit someone."

"What are we going to do this weekend?" were as much part of dorm life as were the buildings. Roommates were those special people who you sometimes couldn't stand to be with, but often couldn't live without.

While several freshmen entered the academy scene with a built in companion right by their sides, others chose to go "pot luck" and took their chances on who they would get. Most weren't too disappointed and even lasted through the year together. While Webster's dictionary defined a roommate as "one who shares lodgings with another or others", it sometimes meant a lot more, as students with similar interests and activities were drawn together to live out the academy days. But whether a student lived with his best friend, or a mere acquaintance, the fine art of occupying the same space required tact and learning how to overlook the little things that grated on each others' nerves from time to time.

"Sometimes it was hard to be together all of the time," said a senior, "After all day of being in classes together, going on road trips, eating together, then living on the same floor with these people, you can be sure that tempers get short sometimes. But that's when you have to overlook the little things that don't really matter, but bug you anyway. And if you can do that, it's like one big family!"

So, whether it was a best friend, a casual acquaintance or a stranger who later became an inseparable companion, a roommate during academy was a person students would likely remember for a long time.

SHARING A SMILE. Loretta Roger's cheerfulness reaches even those at home!

LOOKING GOOD. Girls spend many long hours in front of the mirror. Here Kay Brown prepares herself for an evening activity.

FIGHTING THE ENDLESS BATTLE that all R.A.'s face, Nikke Kinne braces herself against what plot may be against her in this room.

AVOIDING THE MIDNIGHT RUSH. Michelle Larson keeps busy during study hall.

Sharing the Cubicles

The best aspect of dorm life lies in the long lasting friendships one makes through the year.

One learns the true meaning of compromise, sharing, and patience, as the guys from diverse backgrounds come together to learn more about themselves and how God can lead them. They also learn the luxury of cold showers, detention hall, Saturday night dates, and social privileges.

But all is not fun and games, there are endless hours of late night studies to be done along with the frustration of endless phone lines and guys running around the dorm till unearthly hours of the night.

As time passes, everything fades except the memories of good times shared by the lifelong friends made in the dorm.

NEVER-ENDING BATTLE. Sergio and Moses sort through piles of laundry searching for their clothes.

LOBBY RECLINERS. Relaxing together in the lobby is more fun than the confinement of the rooms!

BOOKED UP. Precalculus isn't easy. Duane Burnett and Simon Liverside put heads together to come up with an answer that could cause anyone to think twice.

CHECKING OUT THE ACTION. Guys spend lots of time in the recreation room playing foosball, ping-pong, watching T.V., or just relaxing.

Strike Two-You're Out

Cardiovascular Softball is the first intramural sport played at Shenandoah each year. This variety of softball contains several changes in the rules from regular softball. These changes were added to make the game move faster, and be more enjoyable to watch.

In Cardiovascular Softball, each team must supply their own pitcher and each batter receives only two pitches. Each team is allowed five outs per inning, as compared to three outs per inning in regular softball.

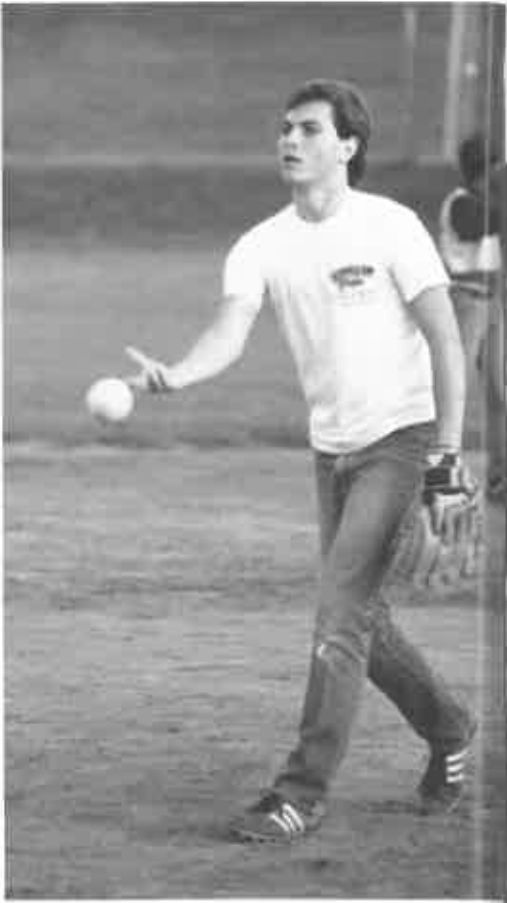

During the change from batting to fielding, the teams rush on and off the field because a team can start batting as soon as all their players are off the field and their pitcher receives the ball.

COMMITTED FANS? Bleachers provide a place to relax and watch the game or talk with some friends.

IN HIGH GEAR. Dave Nerness dashes toward the plate in an effort to beat the flying ball home.

STOPPED ACTION. Marcello Lopes concentrates on an important pitch hoping his teammate will make a home run out of it.

REACHING HIGH. Heidi Smith stretches to catch the ball as her opponet races to the base.

Football lag Style

Diving for flags, sliding through the mud, slipping on the rain-soaked grass, or enjoying a beautiful sunset as the receiver goes long are all parts of flag football at SVA.

The season starts when the days are long and nights short, and ends well into the shorter days of fall.

Because of the large league at Shenandoah, it is a sport that can be enjoyed by many. The concept of pulling flags instead of tackling was instituted to reduce the number of injuries and lessen the amount of physical contact that is common to tackle football. Yet at the same enhancing the skill required to play the game.

According to Coach Henline, the 84-85 season has had the best teams, most sportsmanship, and closest records than ever before in his years of coaching.

From faculty to students the flag football season is enjoyed by all.

JUMPING HIGH. Opponents stretch to hit the ball to their teammates for offensive possession.

Drills on passing, dribbling, lay-ups, shooting, offence and defense, sounds a little monotonous, but that's the major part in playing basketball, hard practice.

Anita Rankin says "This year, the girls team has become more active, with better coaching, and more scheduled games."

The year started out with Steve Vogal as the coach, who was later replaced by coach Henline. The girls may get worked a little harder with a class everyday and extra practices before games, but it's nothing they can't handle.

Overall, girls basketball is a fantastic sport. According to Aimmie Lagundino, and Judi Santos, being on the girls varsity basketball team is, "A great way to show our athletic ability and to represent our christian school at the same time."

Off To A Good Start

Crowds, lines, hugs and welcomes. These are all synonyms for the first event of the school year - Registration! Confused students pushing through walls of people with questions like "Where do I get my packet?" "Where are the tests being done?" "Where are the photographs being taken?" Old students welcome friends they haven't seen all summer. With an air of excitement, students and parents wonder what this new school year will bring.

From the first days of school, till the year is over, registration day is well remembered, as a time for friends to meet, old and new. A time of promise, of hope and hesitant anticipation, for no one is sure what the new year holds.

If one had to sum registration up in one word, the word would be "memories", for registration is a unique time that marks the end of the past, and gives promise for the future.

"IS THAT ME?" Surprise pictures on registration day were a shock as the Student Association officers made instant student I.D.'s.

Handshake is an exciting opportunity for both old and new students to share in the spirit of a new school year. Old students share times with friends, while everyone anticipates making new friends that will last a lifetime.

One to four balloons, according to class, were used as name tags. The faculty started the line, followed by the seniors and the rest of the classes. Handshake ended with a watermelon feast on the ball field.

ANTICIPATION. Waiting for handshake to begin, seniors share plans for the new year.

HANDSHAKE. The students and faculty meet each other with warm hello's and friendly smiles.

WATCH OUT. Carolyn Craig and Rob Baker are ready to face a new year.

EYE TO EYE. Jimmy Decker flashes a warm smile to a close friend.

LEADER OF THE PACK. Dave Nerness leads the pack midway through the mile run, on his way to setting a new record of 4:53.

12 TONS TO MOVE. Mike Fallin leads the way to a senior victory in the bus pull contest.

LIGHT FEET. Junior Kelly Newball races to catch up to the seniors. In the last lap, the junior team caught and passed the seniors to win the half mile relay.

Our Student Associations' Hard Work Made This The Best Fall Picnic

INCH FOR INCH. The junior girls pull their way to victory, as the rest of the class cheers them on.

The S.A. fall picnic was a fun and exciting experience for all. It marked the discovery of the new talent which had come to school.

The day started with an S.A. meeting. Following that, everyone turned to the ballfield where the action began. Many whoops and hollers could be heard as the classes pitted their whits against each other in events like rock-tree-bush, tug-o-war, and the bus pull.

Then came the track events and the talent with it. In the 100 yard dash, two freshmen, Matt Dennison and Shawn-trelle Pettiford, sprinted towards first place. The junior guys and freshmen girls left everyone behind in the 440 yard relay.

The grueling mile didn't prove to be an obstacle for senior Dave Nerness, who broke his old record of 5:02 in exchange for a new school record time of 4:53. Not wanting to be left behind, Tina Wakefield chalked one up for the Sophomores by breaking the old girls mile record of 7:06, and set a new record of 6:42.9.

Energy not diminishing, everyone headed to the pool where seniors swept the pool events with the exception of the junior win in the inner tube relay.

The last events to take place were the softball games. In the girls games, the sophomores and juniors won the preliminaries, advancing them to the championship game, which seasawed back and forth with the sophomores coming out on top by a narrow margin. In the guys games, the juniors and seniors met in the finals, with the seniors emerging as the champions.

At the end of the day, when the points were totaled, the seniors were winners by four points over the juniors.

HUMAN CHAIN. Seniors race against time in the chain relay.

PIGGING OUT. Ready and hungry, George Franklin awaits the start of the pie eating contest.

Who's Who

From Bunny Rabbits to Zoro, everything imaginable showed up for the S.A. Halloween party. Screams from the haunted house could be heard as students waited their turn to go in. Going into the place, only a few at a time was quite an experience. Eerie sounds could be heard as they groped through the darkness. Suddenly from nowhere a frightful witch appeared, scaring people to death. Finally, approaching the end thinking it was all over, a Dracula would grab the students for a final scare and then shove them out the door into the gym.

Judging of the costumes was then done, and prizes were awarded. The best cartoon group was the 'Flintstones,' while the most original was the two person high 'Statue of Liberty.'

The students enjoyed watching the movie 'Running Brave,' which was shown right after the judging. Following the movie, doughnuts and cider were served in the courtyard, as a finishing touch to the evening.

ON VACATION. Fully outfitted, Brian Craig is ready to go diving, all he needs is the water.

64 COLORS. As a box of Crayola Crayons, Steve Marstaller, Roni Hume, Deena Marstaller, and Greg Thompson won first prize as the best group.

FRECKLE FACE. Fun and laughter filled the evening as friends tried to figure out who everyone was supposed to be.

SECURITY. Remember those days when your teddy bear was your best friend? For Michelle Lawson maybe he still is.

REFRESHING. The doughnuts and cider served in the courtyard were a special treat as students visited with each other.

BIG EARS. With a look of innocence, the bunnies Becky Moniz, Judi Santos, and Pam Alignay demonstrate tail wiggling.

TO THE RESCUE. Fully outfitted as Zoro, George Cancel and accompis Becky Felan are ready for action.

Patriotism

Boy's Club Open House was an event to remember this year. On November 11, a parade of well dressed couples made their way to the decorated cafeteria for a delicious banquet with some of the best food ever. In the student center many dates had their pictures taken together.

The main event of the evening was the tour of the boy's dorm. The theme was patriotism, and it was well illustrated in the halls which were decorated in many different topics. The space age, civil war, monuments, military, and baseball were the topics. Each room had been well cleaned and fixed up for the day.

To finish off the evening a movie, Johnny Tremain, was shown. Finally the wonderful evening had to end and the guys escorted their dates back to the dorm.

ALL SMILES. Getting to know others better is the fun of dating. George Lyon enjoys quiet conversation with Jamie Slater while they eat.

VARIETY. There was a delicious assortment of food and desserts prepared for the occasion.

CAREFULLY. Great care was taken as Duane Burnett pinned a corsage on his date, Dana Pryor.

NEAT AND CLEAN. The rooms of the boys dorm were fixed up and decorated to look their very best. One of the nicest looking rooms belonged to Barclay Upchurch.

WAITING. The guys were faced with a packed girls dorm lobby as they picked up their dates and gave them corsages.

Food Fair

Many hours of planning, decorating and food preparations were sacrificed for our annual S.A. foodfair. Leisl Harris, S.A. Fundraiser and her assistant Leslie Sheer were in charge of the fair. Many of the students were involved in helping with decorations which began Saturday evening and went late into the night. The booths were decorated to represent the merchandise they were selling and to appear appealing. The whole gym was adorned with a variety of colorful balloons, streamers, posters, and other trimmings that made the place look special.

For entertainment, cartoons were shown for the young at heart. Also game booths such as dart throwing and the baseball throw were a challenge. And for those who wished to eliminate someone from sight for awhile, for two tickets, they could put their victim into jail. Of course, this was officially done with handcuffs.

Arden Ratana and Randy Possinger, each dressed as a giant Hershey's Kiss, went around selling little Hershey's Kisses with little messages attached to it to the people waiting in lines for food. The selection of food proved to be quite appetizing which included pizza, nachos, tacos, burritos, bagels, daiquiries, ice cream and pina colodas.

After the fair was over, the film "The Hunchback of Notre Dame" was presented in the Ad. Building Chapel. This was an enjoyable movie with its funny moments as well as parts that made tears come to your eyes.

All in all the whole fair was a terrific turnout and proved quite profitable with the amount made coming to $600, making the work and effort well worth it.

PAINTING FACES. Creative designs, some pretty and others horrid were put on at the clown booth.

KISSES FOR SALE. Getting around S.P., for a small fee, Hersheys kisses would be delivered with an attached message to someone special.

DESSERTS. The ice cream booth was the most popular at the fair, with a large variety of toppings for the banana splits and sundaes.

Mother / Daughter Banquet

Each year the girls at SVA have an opportunity to honor their mothers at the Mother-Daughter Banquet. This year's banquet was very enjoyable, despite the wind and cold outside. The theme was Hawaiian.

In the student center, Mr. Strickland snapped pictures of the "best mothers and daughters in the world." Here the ladies had a warm chance to associate with friends and relatives usually miles away.

The cafeteria staff and some handsomely dressed "Hawaiian waiters" served a scrumptious dinner (not to mention the fruit-covered ice cream crepes for dessert). Two large ice sculptures adorned the tables; a giant pineapple and the word MOM.

A light-natured program followed the meal. Several thought-provoking poems were read and songs were sung. Girls put some of their feelings about their special and unique mothers into words. Mrs. Potterton and several girls did a humorous dorm-life skit.

It was a well-planned day; a fun chance for reunion and reminiscing.

HAWAIIAN STYLE. Mothers and daughters enjoyed a delicious assortment of food set out and decorated by a giant ice carved pineapple.

SUDDEN SILENCE. The program included a skit where a noisy and roudy room full of girls became instantly still when the dean walked in.

Mexico Mission Project

On Saturday night, December 15, a group of 26 students and staff representing Shenandoah Valley Academy piled onto the bus and headed for Mexico City, over 2,000 miles away.

We arrived bedrugged and bus sore three days later, but we were, nevertheless, ready to begin.

The Pan American Youth Congress had some high points, but meetings are meetings. However, the interaction with many of the six-thousand youth there and the cultural experience was unforgettable. I'll never forget the night Pastor, Brenden, and I got on the South American bus back to the motel. Everyone was jabbering in Spanish while we sat there smiling and trying out our few words of Spanish. We also spent many enjoyable hours walking through bazaars and bargaining for souvenirs.

At about 12 o'clock, our group would get on one of the infrequent buses and head for the Sports Palace where the meetings were held. We would then listen to and participate in the noon meetings. About that time everyone would get hungry, and a couple of hours would be wasted searching for transportation and a restaurant, ordering and finally eating.

The evening meetings were quite good. Each of the three divisions had one evening to give their presentation on exciting events occurring in their division.

The Youth Congress was capped and made worthwhile by a spectacular Saturday. Elder Dick Barron had a gripping sermon and that evening Columbia Union College portrayed Christ's death by means of a beautiful play. The evening culminated with lighted candles held aloft by each delegate. The whole palace lit up in a truly dazzling display.

On Sunday morning we headed for tropical Acapulco. We all enjoyed a couple of relaxing days in the sun. Even though the waves were small, we still enjoyed swimming in the warm Pacific Ocean. On Christmas Eve we went shopping along the beach of Acapulco. At about 12:15 when everybody was returning to the bus, we saw Miss Dee coming down the sidewalk with two Mexicans. We recognized them because we had just been shopping at their stand. It turned out that they were Adventists and they invited us back to the booth to buy anything we wanted at cost. It was a memorable Christmas Eve because we saw the Christmas spirit showing through even down deep inside Mexico.

On Christmas morning we again took a dip in the ocean and we then headed for Montemorelos and the Mission Project.

Despite the fact that the bus broke down and it took us an extra two days to get to Montemorelos, we were ready for the challenge.

The next four days of physical torture were very rewarding, after we were finished. The sight of the walls rising and the clinic being painted kept us going. Even the backbreaking work of mixing cement "Mexican style" and laying block seemed worthwhile when we saw what we were leaving behind.

Overall the whole experience was very educational and broadening. It was even fun most, but not all, of the time. If the chance came again, yup, I'd go again!

It wasn't easy. But no one said suffering through four years of lectures, term papers, and late-night study sessions would be a breeze.

There simply wasn't an easy way out, and only those students willing to devote extra hours and push themselves to the limits survived.

Some students did more than survive; they studied themselves to a spot on the principal's list.

And behind the successful students were instructors who shared knowledge, experience and themselves. Many students might not have made it through the year without a teachers wise words of advise.

WORKING THE PROBLEMS. Homework is often started in the classroom due to the large amounts piled on in the middle of the week. Students often find that if they don't get a head start during the day they will be studying by candlelight after study hall. Trying to keep up Connie Corbin puts some spare time to use finishing a precalculus problem.

NOTE TAKING. Taking good notes is a must for good learning, especially in senior religion. Sore ears and a worn out pen are not uncommon side affects of a lengthy lecture.

LETTING IT SINK IN. Certain subjects require complete concentration in order for the student to grasp the concepts. Senior Greg Grisso intensely studies for a government exam.

The AD building lobby is filled with a strange scent which lets everyone know that Copies biology students are dissecting in a classroom lab. They get the opportunity to experience life, from the smallest insect to the most intelligent human. In the early afternoon the juniors learn the intricacies of basic chemicals and compounds.

Across the hall in the Physics department the seniors experience the study of matter. The theories of Newton become second nature as they get a hands on look in their labs. Mr. J. brings Einsteins thoughts down to a level which can be understood and learned by everyone. The science department is enjoyed by all of SVA.

TIMID EXAMINATION. Copies biology students learn the fine art of dissecting. Once they get used to the odor the students find that disassembling what once was alive can be fun as well as educational.

TAKING TIME IN CLASS. Physics students are often given time in class to work on their homework. This gives them the opportunity to get the much needed help from Mr. J.

INTENSE STUDY. Mr. J's geometry students study intently. The students often receive worksheets that are harder than the problems in the textbook.

ONE ON ONE. The faculty of SVA pride themselves on the close relationships they have with their students. Math teacher Mrs. Liers works closely with Bill Underwood on Algebra II.

When did it sneak up on us here at school? Over the past two years our campus has rapidly become dominated by the computer.

Two years ago we acquired eight Apple II plus computer systems through generous donations. The administration soon realized the need for a good computer science program. The systems were soon updated and added to, now we have 12 Apple IIe systems. After installation of the new machines the number of computer classes taught by Mr. Johnston was increased. Word Processing has been introduced to the typing II students and the school even bought rights to Logo, Pascal and Fortran for the students to learn with.

The Data Processing and Computer Literacy classes became so full that students had to shuffle their schedules just to insure terminal time.

The business office is in the process of switching from their present system of bookkeeping to a totally computer controlled accounting system to help them with their many duties.

SVA is now making it possible for today's students to be ready for the world of tomorrow.

TERMINAL ADDICTION. With more and more businesses and varied fields incorporating the computer into their operations, its becoming increasingly important that students become familiar with their operation. Dave Nerness puts the finishing touches on a basic program assignment.

MODERN TECHNOLOGY. The new types of typewriters have a video display which can warn you ahead of time if you make a mistake. The school has several new Cannon typewriters that can aid you in typing in many ways. Angie Kidwell puts technology to work for her as she finishes a page.

STRAIGHT CUT. The freshmen guys at Shenandoah Valley Academy learn the art of woodworking. They are provided with modern power tools to give them the experience they need. The students get experience starting and finishing a project. Andy Karmy uses the table saw to cut a piece of wood for his project.

ARCHITECTURAL IMAGINATION. As part of the industrial arts program the students learn the basics of industrial and architectural drawing. They get practical experience at their own drawing board.

UNROUGHING IT. The modern electric power tools, such as this belt sander, aid the students in their design and finishing of their own creations.

THE DIFFERENCE
WAS EXPERIENCED

Suddenly, Another Year Was Over. Seniors Donned Caps And Gowns While Underclassmen Packed And Exchanged Goodbys.

And As Overloaded Cars Headed Out Of New Market, Only Memories Remained. Some Students Recalled Shortcomings, Failures, And Losses. But Most Remembered The Achievements, Accomplishments, And Victories That Made This Year A Special Experience.

Colophon

Volume 53 of the Shenandoah Valley Academy Shenandoan was printed by the lithography process by Jostens Printing and Publishing Company, PO Box 297, State College, Pennsylvania, 16804-0297. Ann Holmes was the representative.

All photographs were taken by staff photographers and printed in the school's photo lab. Color pictures in the opening section were taken by staff photographers, and developed by Gitchell's Photography, Harrisonburg, VA. Color enlargements were made in the school's photo lab with the color print processor. Gentry Photography, Harrisonburg, VA was responsible for taking the people section portraits.

Headlines were set in 36 pt. lydian and Helvetica Medium Outline Dry Transfer letters were handset by staff.

Subheads were in 12 pt. lydian, copy and captions were set in 8 pt. lydian. 10 and 12 pt. lydian was used for special copy. Dropped initials were handset as artwork from Zip-a-Tone 48 pt. Optima Dry Transfer letters.

Color tool lines in senior section were Zipaline matte finish 2 pt. tape lines, and were handset on MSTC boards by staff.

All layouts were designed by staff using 3 and 2-plus-2 column systems. Theme and Divider pages were done in free-style.

All copy was written by students of SVA. The 144 page book was printed on 80-pound Gloss #191 paper. 450 books were printed.
