TUNE UP

ine tuning were the words this year at SVA. This phrase, asked as well as answered questions. It projected new goals and brought marked changes to our campus. These were almost always the changes that received smiles and thank-you's, rather than boos and hisses.

Our biggest tune-up this year was the arrival of a new principal. What's he like? Where's he from? Who does he think he is? What can he do that hasn't been done already? Dean Hunt patiently answered these questions and received a gratifying response.

Dean Hunt and all the new faculty this year are continually bringing us closer to new goals. These goals include: a caring attitude towards others, a respect for others and authority, and bringing God's love closer to ourselves and witnessing it to others.

Brad Haas, Senior, sits in awe of his classmates relaying.

The students themselves have worked hard to get to know, and care about each other's needs. A good example of this would be the new support groups formed with the help of Don Shaw and other faculty members. These groups will always be bringing this campus closer together and to God.

The staff and students have raised many questions on old policies and answered them with new ones. The most popular answer to a policy question was the allowance of tape players in the dorms. The student body is definitely happy about this new compromise to old policy.

Some new and exciting changes have come to our campus this year. The renovation of our old 70's style cafeteria to a more modern, elegant one was undoubtedly a major event in SVA history.

Finally, last but not least, we received up-dated computers this year. Despite the lack of manuals, we enjoy them and will continue to do so even more next year, with the addition of the missing manuals.

In closing, let this introduction speak for itself, now and forever in the pages of this year's Shenandoan.

What's next on the agenda? Ask a group of Juniors on their way to another ride.

Thinking of the Campus church brings back the years when it was first built in the 70's. Since then, many activities have taken place there.

The weekly Friday night vespers sets the mood for Sabbath and church. The Christmas concerts are one event that makes the church burst with joyful noises. Mens Chorus, Womens Chorus, strings, and the Shenandoans all participate.

Church in general is a memory for everyone. For some it's running across campus after Sabbath

"Are you guys sure about this?" questions Dean Hunt.

Long time no see. Everyone say as they go through S.A. Handshake.

Thinking it just another Sunday, the students of S.V.A. made their way to the Cafeteria. While in the Cafe, they were reminded that it was the day of the S.A. picnic. After brunch, the students made their way to the chapel, talking of all activities that were to come. The worship thought was given and then the classes separated for short class meetings. A few minutes later, large masses of voices were heard from the field and the stairs as the students made their way to the field.

After a few announcements were made, the games began. The first activities included the Human Chain, Rock-Tree-

Bush, Sponsor Carry, and the traditional Tug-O-War, only to name a few.

Then the mass body of students moved to the track for the track events. When the last race was won, the students prepared for the first series of girls/guys softball and soccer games.

The final games and the swimming events were followed by the final girls/guys softball games. After the last out of the guys softball game, shouts of victory came from the Junior class, who won the picnic by a large margin.

Oblivious to the score, the Senior class locked arms and marched off the field, humming the graduation march, knowing who was closer to the real goal.

Living Free

What is the difference between a town student's life and a dorm student's life? This question has probably gone through everyone's mind here at school. So I thought I would try to shed some light on it. I lived in the dorm for two and a half years, but now I live with my grandparents. This qualifies me to compare some of the differences.

One thing which immediately comes to mind is the dorm bathroom situation. This only concerns the guys dorm because I've never had a chance to see the inside of the girls dorm. The problem is that the guys must use toilets with no doors on the stalls. This allows for many gaping eyes and no privacy. But a town student has plenty of privacy. I can eat, read, sing, and take as long as I'd like to in my bathroom. I can even do my homework or just sit and think without a single interruption.

Another thing is social life, and the activities that go on campus. Dorm students don't miss very many of the activities. But as a town student, some activities are not worth getting in your car and driving to. To a town student, some things are just not as important as to a dorm student. For example, I can go to town anytime I like, while a dorm student can only go once a month.

In closing, a town student's life is not drastically different from that of a dorm student's. It's true that we have a little more freedom, but sometimes it is hard to handle.

Dorm students are together more but not necessarily closer. The truth of the matter is that we are all the same and a friendship is a friendship no matter where you live. Town life has its advantages and disadvantages, although we do get to go to town more often.

— Andrew Langston

Dorm life has its ups and downs. Sometimes it can be a real adventure, but at other times it is terribly boring and confined. Dorm students are faced with many restrictions and obligations. Some of these may include daily worship attendance, study hall, lights out, radio policies, and room decorum. Though many students complain at these requirements that they are military and useless, in reality, most of them work to the students' benefit.

But seniority can change things. For example, seniors have study hall privileges and lights out at 11:30 p.m.

Although most of the guys' time in the dorm is spent studying late into the night, they do manage to have some fun. One option is the rec room. Some guys play ping-pong, foosball, board games or watch TV. Others lift weights, take part in an occasional wrestling match, or just "socialize" in the lobby or in each other's rooms. There are even a few guys who spend hours talking to their girlfriends on the phone.

Some guys have started "stores" in their rooms. Finding burritos and soft drinks to be fast sellers, these students have a source of income to fund other activities.

Creativity is the key to fun when it comes to dorm life. Many good memories have been created in Price Hall. It is memories like these that cause students to look back upon their experience at SVA with a feeling fondness.

Dedication

We, the students of the 1989-90 school year, proudly dedicate our yearbook to Brent Mann. Brent has been a faculty member of S.V.A. for three years now. He has made it a point of seeing that each and every student become his friend. Whenever we have needed moral support, Brent has always been there for us.

As a task force worker in the religion department, Brent has encouraged us spiritually and made Sabbath Schools come to life. Whether substituting for teachers, taking us to 7-Eleven, or assisting the Olympians, his enthusiasm and love for life has radiated about him. The entire school would like to thank Brent for the example he has been and for the devotion he has given to us.

Brent Mann as usual "Luvin' Life"

What are you hiding Brent?

Academics

Academics

The academics this year at S.V.A. have included a little bit of everything; we have three different courses of study this year. The first one is the Standard Diploma program. This program just gives you the basics. If you plan to go to college you would be interested in taking one of two different courses. They would be either College Prep. or the Honors program. Both courses adequately meet college entrance requirements.

Among these courses there is a wide variety of classes to take. Some classes however are geared more toward one program or another.

A vital part of the school day is work. It may not be the most popular activity but some jobs do in fact offer an opportunity for fun and relaxation. These jobs are quickly taken as well as few and far between.

Study halls differ from dorm to dorm, but in general study hall is what you make it. For some it is a time to lay back and relax while for others it is time to get serious about your books. Grades plus time equal the dedication of our lives.

We have four different touring groups this year. Olympians, Band, Shenandoahans, and basketball are all really a lot of fun. Each one of these groups, however, require serious effort, commitment and a lot of time and hard work. We are proud of our touring groups and will always support and participate in them.

The teachers this year have been more work than fun. But we still love them despite heavy loads of incredible time consuming assignments.

In closing, I feel that this year has offered a good variety of courses. Courses that will not only affect us a couple years from now in college but for the rest of our lives. The classes, teachers, and times here at S.V.A. will always impact us in ways we will never forget.

The Few The Proud The Weary

The 1989-90 Shenandoah and Shen-Val-Lore school year has been, in one word: grueling! I say Shenandoah and Shen-Val-Lore only because it would seem that if you were on the yearbook staff then it was only automatic that you were also on the Shen-Val-Lore staff.

With only a few people, we have achieved what would seem impossible on our own. We would like to recognize these people for their time and help contributed to our yearbook this year. Ken Varga — editor-in-chief (yearbook); J.D. Clemons — assistant editor (yearbook); Kelly Veach — editor-in-chief (newspaper); Brigitta Szerecz — copy editor (yearbook); Tonya Brown — caption editor (yearbook); Rich Vinglas — head photographer (yearbook); Hope Nevala — marketing manager (yearbook); and all those writers who have helped give us such success this year.

No one, whether they have worked on yearbook or newspaper will ever forget working long nights before a deadline; trying to explain to the deans why we would be missing dorm worship for the eighth time this week; or rushing to write copy under a hangman's noose.

Now we present your yearbook as only we could do it. With the hope that as you turn it's pages, yesterday will be remembered as through it were today.

SVA's Mens and Womens Chorus under the direction of Waldemar Wensell, provides an excellent opportunity for novice vocalists to develop and improve their talents. Womens and Men Chorus began meeting together on Thursdays during Second Semester.

When Mens and Womens Chorus began meeting together, Lisa Mountcastle, a Sophomore, said, "It was a cool idea and will give us more experience and a better sound."

"Chorus gives us a chance to explore our talents. Mr. Wensell lets us know that we are believed in and is always willing to work with us," commented Yvonda Roberts, a Junior.

When asked why he joined Chorus, Senior Eric Cruz said, "I really missed singing and needed a GPA booster."

Brass Ensemble

Brass Ensemble is composed of the first and sometimes second chair from each brass section in the band. It currently has eleven members. Mr. Wilson has found that it's a fair amount easier to set up with eleven people as opposed to more than fifty. For this reason, Brass has been asked to do various vespers programs and church services, most of them for our church here in New Market. Some of the plans Brass had for this year included going out for pizza and touring the D.C. area with an evening in Georgetown.

The members of the Brass Ensemble include Doug Wilson, Eric Gang, Manoj Enjati, and Herb Lim on trumpet; Jeff Flowers on the French horn; Brian Gang on the euphonium; Connie Kuykendall, Don Jackson, and Todd Hollis all on the trombone; Jonathon Michael on the tuba; and Rochelle Smith playing the synthesizer.

The small size of the group makes it a very pleasurable one. It also makes it easier to work with each other. The practice times are very scarce. Usually, the group only practices the day before they are to perform. Since there are only seniors in Brass this year, next year's ensemble has a good head start.

— Rochelle Smith

Band

S.V.A. has one of the best bands on the East Coast. Mr. Wilson, our conductor, makes us work hard to bring each piece to perfection. His lively spirit and attitude reflects on the students and music.

The band this year has over 60 members of which many are new. Fredricksburg and Richmond are just a few of the many churches where band has played this year. The Fall Concert, Christmas Concert, and Apple Blossom Festival are among the band highlights.

Touring is a big reason for joining band. This year especially, since Norway was the long awaited tour.

Getting up early, long practices, and crazy bus rides are just a few of the things that make Band fun and worthwhile for all.

— Wisam Karim

Shenandoans

As the lists for Shenandoans went up, screams could be heard throughout various parts of campus. Everyone crowded around to see who had and hadn't made it. Under the new direction of Mr. Waldemar Wensell, the members were chosen through auditions during the first week of school.

What is Shenandoans? Shenandoans are a small vocal touring group on campus. Their tours take them to various places along the East Coast. Shenandoans are a team, one that has to work hard together to achieve their goals.

From the beginning of the year, the members were expected to be fully dedicated to the organization. Which meant practicing your part with Mr. Wensall outside of class, long dress rehearsals, and extra-practices when scheduled. But when the final product came out, everyone realized the hard work was worth it.

Tours are another highlight for the group. This is the chance where you get to go to different places, meet new people and witness through your music. Although the hurry of getting changed in a tiny bathroom is quite challenging, the crazy bus rides, the sleepover with friends and the close-knit friendships formed make the tour worthwhile.

Pete Williams, a Junior from Adelphi, MD, sums it all up by saying, "I like Shenandoans because it gives me the opportunity to work with other students with the same interest."

When R.A.'s think of Hadley Hall, it reminds them of their worst nightmare. The night begins as we stand on the side of the chapel like guards who will whip you if you moved an inch or spoke one word. Going into study hall, we stagger up the stairs and check the few that are smart enough to get checked in while the rest of the time we are brutally punishing escaped victims of study hall with pushups and air-chairs.

Break time, we about collapse, and then reluctantly return at 9:30. When 10:30 comes, we whiz through check and have prayer time as quick as possible.

Whenever you ask an R.A. at Hadley Hall what they would like the most if they could have it during study hall, it would be REST and RELAXATION from immature freshmen and sophomores. We are as brutal as can be but then again we love bustin' people and isn't that what R.A. life is about?

The few, the proud, the Price Hall R.A.'s. They report for duty each night at 8:30 and take off at 10:30. It is their responsibility to keep things quiet during study hall at any cost. For the most part this is easily accomplished by forming good relations with the guys on their halls.

There are, however, occasions where an underclassman feels the need to test the R.A.'s authority. Then it's time to get tough. Some deal out air chairs or push ups, while others bodily throw the law breakers into their rooms.

Whatever the case, all R.A.'s look forward to quitting time after the nightly meeting. They may even talk Dean Peterson into some R and R at Shoneys.

The S.A. officers slid into the groove early, beginning with the traditional S.A. Handshake on August 21. Each student was bombarded by over 250 hugs from friends and even strangers.

Next a barn party was held on Halloween night. The students enjoyed costume contests, hay rides under a moonlit sky, homemade pumpkin pies, bobbing for apples, and some even made their own cotton candy.

1989 ended with the S.A. Christmas party that was devoted to the true meaning of Christmas. The students were able to become "parents" for a night to 30 needy kids. The kids received toys that were only wished for before the party.

The last major S.A. function was the Valentines Banquet, held February 14. It proved to be a success for all the sweet hearts at SVA.

The Student Association worked hard at planning activities and appreciate the support of the student body and the S.A. sponsors. Dean Hunt and Kelly Menhardt, for making 1989-90 a more fun and spirited year.

WHAT A YEAR

What a year! A school year that saw us end the 80's and begin the 90's has been packed with memories. It is a year that will be remembered for the San Francisco earthquake, Hurricane Hugo, the collapse of Eastern Europe and the invasion of Panama. It was the year that the 49'ers won their 4th Super Bowl and it snowed in Florida on Christmas day. It was a year that will not be forgotten.

As you slowly turn through these much worn pages, the memories of this year at SVA will come pouring out. The sights and sounds will be relived as you recall events such as the music trip to Norway, the mission trip to Mexico, life with its crazy moments in the dorm, and more than anything the friendships we all shared through the year.

For you seniors who are leaving after this year, thank you for your leadership. It was because of you that this year was so successful. You took the reigns of leadership and gave us one of the best years. I would like to encourage you as you look forward to your future in the work force or in your college years ahead, whichever you have chosen. I hope that they years at SVA will always be a part of your fondest memories.

I hope that each of us will carry away a greater love for our Creator. Through the many spiritual activities and classes, I hope that you have come to know and love the Lord more. Our greatest hope should be that everyone will meet again in the earth made new.

Have a wonderful summer and come back ready to make the 1990-91 school year as good as this one!

Always your friend,
Mr. Hunt, Principal

NEW FACES

"Things just won't be the same after this," comments Dean Peterson to Dean Hoover and Mrs. Porter.

"New life has been brought into the school," Duncan Oddie, a three year senior comments on the new faculty. Many students share the same feeling about the new staff at SVA. Over half of the faculty this year are new. They come from all over the U.S., as far south as Miami, north as Michigan, and west as Colorado.

The most valuable addition to our staff is obviously the principal, Dean Hunt. He came to us from Madison Academy in Tennessee. Students find him interesting and appreciate the hard work he does for the school. Denise Prins expresses her gratitude to our new principal by saying, "I think he's cool because he always has time to listen to the students and to discuss problems with them."

A new position on our staff is that of guidance counselor filled by Pastor Don Shaw from Norfolk. Suzi Kendall, a four year senior, states that "Pastor Shaw is a welcome addition to the campus, for we have long needed his understanding."

Many other new people have become valuable faculty members at SVA. These staff have brought a new and long-awaited vitality to the campus. They will continue to keep the "Spirit of SVA" alive.

JUNIORS

Kevin Adams

None could doubt the tremendous potential of the class of '91 as they arrived for registration, August 17, 1989. From the beginning, they have always possessed a tight bonding relationship towards their fellow classmates, and a strong, sometimes fierce competitive attitude against the other classes. Leading to the everlasting rivalry with the class of '90. With their enthusiastic leader, Pastor Kilgore, at the helm, the class of '91 never played the typical "freshman" role of always being picked on. In fact, besides the Beta-Rats, the class of '91 was probably the most obnoxious class in the school. That year with the help of Mr. Zork, the Freshmen got first place in the class song competition with their version of "Great Balls of Fire". To top off their first year, they defeated the Juniors ('89) in the softball championships.

Going into their Sophomore year, they thought everything would be a piece of cake. Well, their overconfidence finally played against them. For in the Senior-Sophomore ('89-91) rematch the Seniors beat them handily. But a bright note was that the Sophomores beat and tied the Juniors ('90) in two flag football games. However the most exciting thing that year was the Junior Varsity basketball season. The fifteen man squad carried nine Sophomores. Led by the four sometimes five Sophomore starters, the J.V. then did the unimaginable. They had a perfect (17-0) undefeated season. A feat never before matched in the history of S.V.A. One of the highlights of that year was a trip to Massanutten, where they rented the sports complex for the evening. That time really pulled our class together. New comers have always found it easy to be accepted into the class.

As Juniors they started the year off by winning the Fall Picnic by a margin of 110 points. Later on in the year, the Junior guys went undefeated in the Volleyball tournament sponsored by S.A. The class of '91 has always been noted for its strong school and even greater class spirit. For the last three years, the class of '91 has always been well represented in every organization. They hope that their positive influence will leave a lasting impression on the school for years to come.

The class of '92 is the class to watch out for in the coming years. We have a class that is full of high spirits and is committed to excellence. Our goal is to come together as a class and excel in all areas.

Our many attributes are displayed in our grades, spirit, and willingness to participate with the school. We have many students who have helped to make our class one of stars.

David Patterson plays varsity basketball for the S.V.A. Stars. He is one of the top players. Jane Duncan, Julie Kumalae, Alison Shyab, Tommy Ball, Herbert Lim, Tim Arena, and Jonathan Michaels are just a few of the many sophomores that have the G.P.A.'s of stars.

Sophomores are not afraid of extra-curricular activities. We have many Sophomores that have very active lives outside the classroom. Guys and Girls organized sports are jammed full of Sophomores. Even in B-League flag football, all of the captains were Sophomores. Many members of the Sophomore class are also active in the fine arts, such as Band, Shenandoans, and Mens and Womens Chorus.

We feel no need to be shy of the things which pertain to our class. We have a high self-confidence that brings us to the top.

I feel, as President of the Sophomore class that the class of '92 will grow to become leaders. Leaders for our country and leaders for Christ. Our many attributes are not here only for our class, but for others to see what a class can be when they come together.

F R E S H M E N

On August 20, 1989, another group of Freshmen came to the campus of S.V.A. They brought along with them many talents and interests.

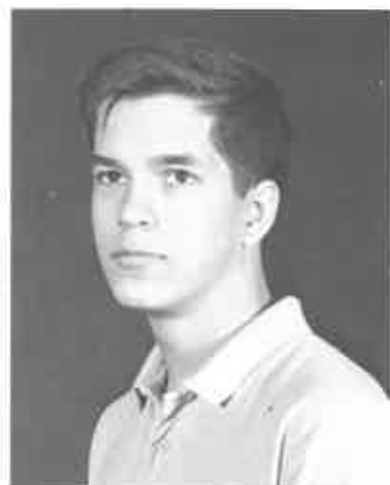

An area that may not be of great interest, but is worth mentioning is academics. The highest G.P.A. for the first nine weeks of school was held by a Freshmen. Obtaining good grades is not only compounded by dealing with adjustments to being away from home, but this is the first year of new educational requirements. There are also some Freshmen this year taking classes that are advanced past the Freshmen level.

There are many Freshmen in touring organizations and basketball. Such touring groups are the Olympians, Band, and Shenandoans. All of the classes require extra practice and demand. Basketball for instance meets in the evening and may not let out until 9:30 p.m.

Extra-curricular activities also play big roles in the lives of many Freshmen. Whether the hobby is basketball, photography, spelunking, flying model airplanes, or reading a book, they play a big role. Other activities in which Freshmen participate are intramural sports and the infamous S.A. picnic. This year marked the first year in a while that Freshmen didn't finish last in the picnic. Although we were not in first place, we broke a streak that we are proud to have broken. Other aspects of extra-curricular activities are the intramural sports which involve many Freshmen and we hope this will continue.

Through the many events that have taken place so far this year, the Freshmen class officers have concluded on some goals that we hope this class will accomplish. The first goal is to keep up the many good things happening at S.V.A., the second is to grow closer together as a whole. Our third goal is to enjoy and take responsible advantage of what is offered at S.V.A.

The S.A. Christmas Party

Buddies

Open the hangar doors.

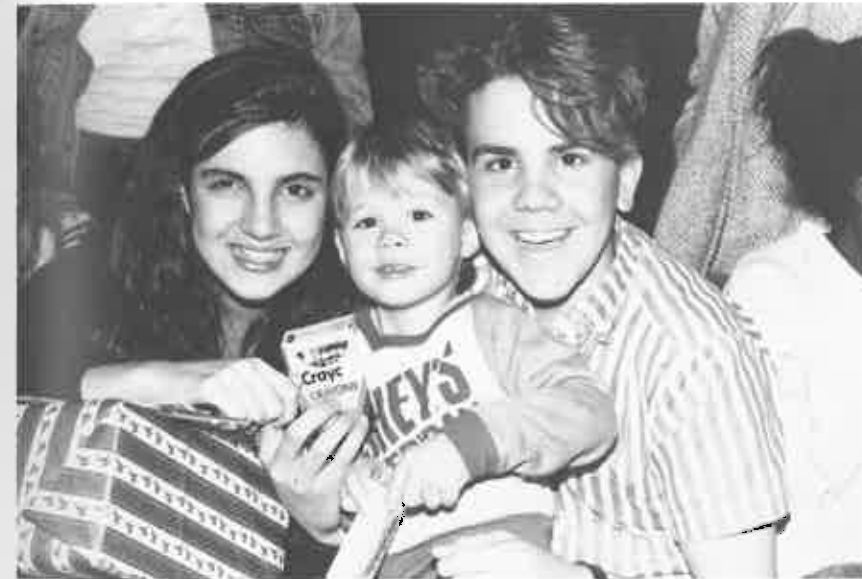

Look what I got!

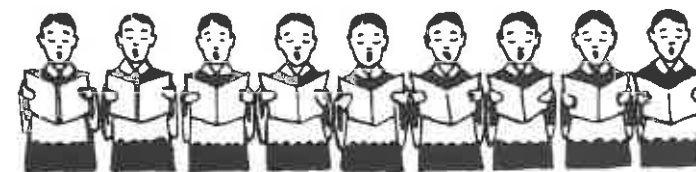

Is that a real beard?

Watcha lookin at?

So happy together . . .

Christmas is a time for sharing good fortunes with those who are less fortunate. This seemed to be the predominate thought in the minds of SVA students as they prepared to welcome forty children in dire need from the neighboring vicinities. In years past, only six or so children were invited to the Christmas party. But with generous contributions from church members as well as the SVA students, the Christmas project was able to spread further than ever before.

Couples were assigned an "adopted" child, and with the money that was donated, went shopping for their child. It was exciting to see the kids sit on Santa's lap by the Christmas tree and receive their gifts, thinking that without this party that child might not have received any presents. The entire student body exhibited the excitement and energy of the magic of Christmas that they had when they were young.

A lot of work went into the planning of the S.A. Christmas Party, but no one exerted more effort than the S.A. sponsor, Mrs. Menhardt, or President Dalanya Dabney. Without them this special event would never have happened.

Girls Open House Guys Reception

The theme of the Thea Fia Open-house was "Decades in America", and each hall was assigned and decorated for a different era. Decorations included a juke box and a soda fountain in the 50's hall and a Vietnam foxhole for the 70's hall. "I really had a fun time in the Girls Dorm," said Cello Flores, Senior.

The evening progressed to the Sigma Beta Chi Reception served by cowboys, as the faces of favorite western heroes looked on. Entertainment was provided by Kenny Jones and friends in the chapel, before a film.

"It was a magical evening and I was bitterly grieved to see it end," said Barbara Ronk, when the night was over.

"It was the best of times, it was the worst of times . . ."

This year, the traditional Christmas Candlelight Concert at SVA was filled with beautiful music. Under the direction of Waldemar Wensell, the Shenandoans and Mens and Womens Chorus' sang such songs as "O Come O come Emmanuel", "Lo How A Rose Ere Blooming", and "Ding dong Merrily on High." A special moment in the program was when the Brass and String Ensembles accompanied the Shenandoans in "Gloria" by Mozart. At the close of the concert, the Alumni joined the combined choirs in singing "O Jesu So Sweet." The 1989 Candlelight Concert was spiritually uplifting as well as enjoyable evening for all ages.

SNOWBOARDING

Snowboarding, the art of winter surfing, is a great and fun sport that has really just started this year on our campus. Almost anyone can learn to ride one; it's like standing on your sled or skiing with both feet in one shoe.

Some students have made their own snowboards ranging from the size of a skateboard to 5 ft. in length. Others have a real snowboard. It doesn't matter which kind you use, all that counts is you're out traveling down the snow covered hills and having fun.

BARN PARTY

It was a chilly evening as students waited to load buses to take them to the Barn Party. The Ad Building parking lot was filled with anticipated excitement. Although it began to drizzle a little, nothing could ruin the mood of the oddly dressed crowd.

Outside the barn, people prepared to take off on hayrides and a bonfire blazed into the sky. People stood around, talking and making "smores" over the fire.

As the hayrides ended, the sounds of a live blue grass band could be heard coming through the open windows. At the top of the stairs were bales of hay covering the floor, the band at the front, cotton candy and pumpkin pie set up in the back, and to the left was a place set up to bob for apples.

After the hayrides and food everyone gathered together again in the barn for the costume judging. Cowboys and farm hands were the most prevalent costumes. But the prize winners were Walter Humphries as the Incredible Hulk, Wendy Boyd as Robin Hood, and Laramie Boyd and Sarah Noble as G.I. Joe and G.I. Jet. Other costumes included: gypsies, nuns, and all sorts of people who came as their own weird selves.

On the ride back, laughter and singing filled the air and the cowboys shot off one more round.

The seniors of the '89 to '90 school year are a very diverse group of students. Many different lifestyles, cultures, and nationalities are represented. The seniors love to come to SVA from all over the United States, as well as from several foreign countries. They come from various financial backgrounds and family situations. Some are from rural areas, while others are from more urban areas. Various value systems are represented among the seniors. Some may say that these differences would lead to the separation, rather than the unity of the senior class. This, however, is not the case. Diversity gives the senior class a unique individuality unlike that of any other high school. This individuality is what unites the seniors as a whole.

Some colleges brag about their hills. We thought we'd show you one of ours.

This is Capitol Hill in downtown Washington, D.C. Sure, it isn't much good for grazing cattle or growing grapes. But it is the capital of the free world, and it's just seven miles from Columbia Union College. CUC students have met the President, worked in Congressional offices on Capitol Hill, and watched history being made at the Supreme Court. So when we talk about CUC's scenic location, we're not just whistling Dixie.

Tuning

Out

This year was off to a roaring start with Dean Hunt at the wheel. New students, faculty and renovations to the pool and cafeteria were a good tune up which gave the student body a new outlook on the school year.

This year students felt that SVA was not just another typical Adventist school. No longer did we spin our wheels. Instead, we left the competition behind — coughing in the dust.

The close friendships that have developed will last forever in our thoughts. The good times and not so good times will always be a part of our memories of SVA.

No matter where we go or how old we are this togetherness need not end. Now that we have been precisely tuned, let's all chart our courses so that our journey brings us together again in Heaven.

— Ken Varga

The Lord Jesus Christ be with thy spirit.
Grace be with you. Amen.
